A BACKUP INTERNET CONNECTION WHEN YOUR MAIN INTERNET FAILS!

Is a constant Internet connection critical to your business? What would an Internet connection failure cost your business?

In many cases, if your Internet goes down, so does your business. You should consider Spirit's Redundancy as a Service.

Spirit offers a Redundancy as a Service (RaaS) solution that provides you with peace of mind by ensuring that your business stays connected to the Internet.

In simple terms, a redundant Internet connection is a backup connection that is available when your primary service experiences an outage. The goal of having redundancy is to limit downtime and minimise the impact on customers and staff.

There are many reasons for a service to go down, some of which are uncontrollable, such as a construction worker digging in the wrong place and accidentally cutting the cable linking to your fibre data connection.

In the event of an outage with your primary provider, your business can fail-over to Spirit's network, keeping end-users connected and working with speeds up to 30/30Mbps*.

Consider it like an insurance policy when your primary Internet connection fails.

The only way to achieve true redundancy is by choosing a service that transmits data in an entirely different way from your primary Internet connection. Spirit's independent network transmits data using fixed wireless technology. Because your data travels over our independent wireless network, you'll get a backup service that is truly redundant to your primary connection.

Why choose Spirit's RaaS solution?

- Independent wireless network provides true redundancy
- Flexible contract terms available
- Spirit's independent wireless network provides greater reliability across an alternative access technology
- Genuine alternative to the NBN
- Not reliant on private networks of larger incumbents and resellers
- Static IP address included; BGP supported
- Functions the same as SpiritAir on a technical level
- Premium SLA ensures a corporate grade service that you can rely on
